In the contemporary times of these global conflicts, whether it is the Russian-Ukraine conflict or the Israel-Iran conflict or many ~~no need~~ others, our understanding of peace in the absence of war or in another sense in armies fighting wars to win peace. However, this is only one political view of peace but not the only meaning because during a time without war it does not mean that people are at peace and society is peaceful while problems or hostilities are still exist.

use. of use. For example, state of mind and endurance are essential elements of a person's existence resulting from peace. Furthermore, freedom and human rights, essential elements of a prosperous society, and justice and security, essential elements of a stable state, can only be possible when there is a peaceful society. Moreover, if we refer to the state of a place or an atmosphere, peace means quietness and silence. Yet, to understand the true meaning of peace it is important to analyse how its various aspects ~~being~~ bring all other elements into existence.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru emphasized on peace in the sense of a state of mind. He stated "Peace is not merely the absence of war but it also a state of mind and peace can come only to peaceful people." Here, in his view peace is not a relationship between nations, rather it is a state of mind arising from peace of soul, scholars consider it to be internal peace or inner peace.

Well structured formation of Body Paragraph

→ No need to define again.

Internal peace is called by another word inner peace is peace of mind or soul. It is a state of calm, serenity and tranquility of mind that arise due to having no sufferings or mental disturbances such as worry, anxiety, greed, desire, hatred, ill-will, delusion and/or other defilements. Internal peace is peace within oneself; it is derived from practicing or training of mind of an individual. In the world of religions, this type of peace can be reached by means of prayer, meditations, wisdom and other ways.

Why write this? Here.

Internal peace is essential; it is generally regarded as true peace and as a real foundation of peace in society or peace in the world.

Norwegian sociologist John Galtung linked the terms peace and violence and found that peace is the absence of violence and should be used as social goal. Scholars have called it external peace or outer peace, which can be achieved through the attainment of all social virtues. Galtung further said that just as a coin has two sides, external peace also has two sides, negative peace and positive peace.

Negative peace is the absence of violence while positive peace is an absence of structural violence or social justice. ✓ Good way to write Body Paragraph

The connection between peace and justice is intrinsic. The famous American civil rights activist Martin Luther King Jr. also believed that peace is the result of the justice. In his view, definition of peace focusing only on the absence of unhappy situations was not satisfactory, but peace should also include justice in society because according to him,

✓ "True peace is not merely the absence of tension; this is presence of justice."

Furthermore, Albert Einstein's perception to peace was almost similar, but he also mentioned law and order. He stated, "Peace is not only an absence of war, but it means or includes the presence of justice, law, order or government." In his sight peace is an indication that the affairs of state is harmonious and properly ordered. It is a state of tranquillity, a sense that "all's right with the world."

Beyond the level of individual societies and states, His Holiness the Fourteenth Dalai Lama believes that peace must also be achieved at the level of humanity in the form of human rights. He said, "Peace in the sense of the absence of war is of little value peace can only last where human rights are respected where people are fed, and where individuals and nations are free." From his point, we can say that peace means respect of human rights, wellbeing of people and freedom of individuals and nations.

According to Chinese philosopher Lao-Tzu is both inner peace and outer peace are dependent on each other as the former guarantees and sustains the latter. In this context, the famous saying of Lao Tzu is, "If there is to be peace in the world, there must be peace in the nations. If there is to be peace in the nations, there must be peace in the cities. If there is to be peace in the cities, there must be peace between neighbours. If there is to be peace between neighbours, there must be peace in the home. If there is to be peace in the home, there must be peace in the heart."

It clearly shows that internal peace influences external peace. It is like a big building which has to be grounded or constructed by the first brick and peace is also built like wise.

Hence, we have seen, Internal peace is the core of external peace. Internal peace represents individual's peace while external peace represents peace in society. No doubt, inner peace and outer peace are two different but interrelated concepts but inner peace is the true basis of peace in the society.

Dalai lama concluded the same in his statement, "We can never obtain peace in the outer world until we make peace with ourselves!"
